Many companies are redesigning their traditional lapel pins into custom badge holders. These recreated badge holders can incorporate years of service, particular certification levels, as well as accommodate in-field on-the-spot recognition for quality, attendance, or any specific recognition a company wants to award.

Almost all companies recognize their sales personnel - when they reach a new sales level, or surpass a specific quota, etc. However, what about all the other important goals that personnel are meeting and exceeding every day - like quality achievements, attendance goals, safety records, etc.? Make sure that you are not overlooking a great opportunity to recognize and reinforce all the behaviors that are important to your organization.

A very visible and classic token of gratitude is custom jewelry. Custom logoed jewelry travels with the recipient wherever they go, reminding them that the company appreciates their efforts. It is also a visible sign of achievement that co-workers and customers see everyday - encouraging others to strive for the same award, and customers to see the award recipient as a true professional.

For over 50 years, E.A. Dion, through its national network of independent distributors, has been providing creative jewelry solutions for recognition, promotion and motivation. Our jewelry designers can create a unique piece that your award recipients will be proud to wear.

Send us an email or call today and we will connect you with an Independent Distributor in your area.
