

Recognize with something your employees already wear every day.

Custom badge holders are a very visible way to show off achievements. These very functional pieces can also include add-on components to recognize other achievements - like training levels, perfect attendance, etc.

Custom award jewelry goes with the wearer everywhere they go. It is highly visible recognition that reminds the wearer of the value their company places on them and will inspire others to achieve success as well.

Many companies and organizations are using the badge holder for far more than a fastener to hold an employee's badge. They are redesigning their years of service awards into badge holders that employees will wear every day. Custom badge holders can also include in-field add-on options that allow companies to satisfy multiple award recognition goals on the spot and are displayed in a very visible way for co-workers, customers and others to see and recognize their contributions.

For over 50 years, E.A. Dion, through its national network of Independent Distributors, has been providing creative jewelry solutions for recognition, promotion and motivation. Our jewelry designers can create a unique piece that will get you excited and set you apart from the competition.

Send us an email or call today and we will connect you with an Independent Distributor in your area.
